The amount of taxes collected for these years as per this statement which was due the sinking fund, which amount we were legally bound to pay $1176.40. Leaving a balance which this and the preceding board paid more than we were required to pay of $557.97

Every order and every check issued in payment of these orders is on file with the Chairman of this Board, and any patron of this district is cordially invited to come in and inspect same. Public school records are public records, and any person who lives in the district has a right to examine same at any time.

Respectfully submitted,

Jno. B. Phipps, Sec.

C. W. Womack, Chmn.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Tom Henry Caskey left Tuesday morning for Chicago where he has accepted a position with an oil refining company. Tom's host of friends in Morgan county regret his leaving very much and all join in wishing him success in his new field.

Aged Woman Dead.

Mrs. Rhoda Rose died here at about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. Aunt Rhoda, as she was familiarly called was 79 years old and until a few days ago was in good health for one of her age. She was stricken with paralysis at the home of Lee Gross, only a short distance from her home and was unable to be removed while she lived. She is survived by three sons, C. D. Sublett, of Charleston, W. Va., Wess Rose of Clearfield, and Coon Rose, of this place, all of whom were with her when the end came. The remains were buried Sunday at the Salyer graveyard. Short funeral services were conducted at the grave by Rev. Jno. R. Wheeler.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.

Farmer's Corner.

Dynamite for Orchards.

Last Spring I bought an old place mostly given over to rabbit and blackberry briars. The soil was fairly good, and there was a ragged remnant of an old orchard over about twelve acres of the farm. Most of the trees were dead, and the rest were in such ragged condition that I thought it best to cut them down, grub them out, and replant most of the space, says a writer in the Farm Progress.

I did not know whether to set the young trees by the side of the old stumps, or grub the old trees and put the young ones in the exact spot where they had stood.

I finally decided to use dynamite in getting rid of the old stumps. There were several reasons for this, among them being the fact that dynamite would loosen up the soil around these old trees. This was something they were in need of, as the earth around them had not been stirred for many years. I was getting rid of the stumps and at the same time killing all grubs, worms and wood-eating bugs that might be lurking in the soil.

There is said to be a great deal of insect life around the roots of old orchard trees, and the dynamite effectually puts a stop to their activities.

It seems to be a bad plan to put the young trees in the very spot occupied by dying or dead ones, unless something radical is done to the ground where they are placed. Dynamite seems to be the very thing to get rid of these lurkers.

I put over a hundred new trees along in the spring, using the dynamite in practically all the settings. All of the trees did fine until the long dry and heated spell late last summer. A few of them died then, but I am sure that more of them would have withered if they had been planted in the ordinary manner.

The explosive ripped down through the hardpan, and reached the soil underneath. In some of the very driest weather last summer I noticed that there was a moist space around the young trees. The cost of the stump blowing and tree planting amounted to very little, not more than 11 cents a tree on the average.

This was an old orchard, some of the trees having been planted all of forty years ago. I found traces of the presence of a good many tree and orchard pests in the ground around them, but dynamite served to remove the danger.

Another thing I noticed about the trees was that they grew much faster than those that I merely stuck into the ground with the help of a spade. They grew all of a third faster than those that were planted in the old fashioned way. Some of them increased their growth by about 27 inches, this, too, in spite of the long continued hot spell and the lack of rain. Most of the trees that I lost last summer were those that had been set with the spade.

I have heard of an old orchard in one of the eastern states that had been planted for sixty years, and had just about stopped bearing. For the last four years it had been a failure. The trees had been planted about thirty feet apart, and in order to loosen up the soil, an experimenter set off half stick of 40 per cent dynamite between every tree. The fall crop of 1911 was greater than the orchard had borne in years. The old trees had literally been shocked into bearing when everyone thought their usefulness had ended.—Ex.

Hog Breeding

The principle requirement for success in the establishment of a high-class herd of hogs is ability to select from the young stock produced on the farm, the proper animals to breed from. It is here that the man who is a good judge of swine has an immense advantage, for not only can he select his animals better, but he can select them earlier. Select the breeding stock for good individuality, but select these good individuals from large and uniform litters, from sows that were good mothers, and from the animals that thrived well from the start.

In the large breeding herds of the country there is seldom introduced much outside blood as the breeders prefer to practice some inbreeding to tuning the risk of getting animals that will not "nick" well with their herd. For the ordinary breeder or beginner these precautions are unnecessary. For them it is safer to get a boar of different blood than to run the risk of lowering the vitality of the herd.

Uniformity among the animals selected is very important. It goes deeper than the surface and includes every part of the animal, the digestive system, the circulatory system, the nervous system, and more than all, the reproductive system. Not only should the animals look alike, but they should come from animals that have been bred along the same lines and with the same object in view. Uniformity in quality, constitution, and conformation are comparatively easy to obtain, but to determine the uniformity in breeding, one must go back to the pedigrees of the animals.

Good sows are of very great importance to the breeder, but while emphasizing this point the value of a high class boar must not be overlooked. The boar represents 50 per cent of the reproducing power of the herd concentrated in one individual, while the sows represent 50 per cent scattered among five, ten, or a large number. Some people believe that one boar, so long as he is strong enough for service is as good as another. This is a mistake, as an inferior male, even if mated with good females, will lower the quality of a herd, while a superior male, even with mated with poor females, will raise the standard. To achieve best results a breeder should always have good sows and should mate them to a boar of even higher quality.—Farm Press.

A variety of feed will simulate the hen to her greatest egg production. The small potatoes and other vegetables that are not suitable for human food can be fed to the chickens to splendid advantage. If you feel like making this ration unusually appetizing just boil these up and mix enough brand or shorts to make a comparatively dry mash.—Ex.

One of the severest rain and electrical storms ever seen in this part of the country swept over parts of the country last Wednesday night, doing great damage to growing crops and to meadows where the hay was still in shock. Considerable fencing is reported washed away along some of the smaller streams, and many fields of corn were badly damaged by the wind. The river overflowed its banks Thursday and much corn in the lower bottoms will be a total loss.

One of the most common ailments that hard working people are afflicted with is lame back. Apply Chamberlain's Liniment twice a day and massage the back thoroughly at each application, and you will get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.

J. W. Sparks, of Sandy Hook, representing Watts, Ritter & Co. Clothiers, Huntington, W. Va., was here last week.

Supervisor's Report of Second Week's Work

After having remained at Wrigley until Monday and placing Mr. Whitt in charge of the Primary department of the school there, we took the train for Redwine. When we reached the little town nestled in the valley between two hills, we at once inquired for the schoolhouse. One of the citizens pointed out a large, nice looking building in the "woods," situated on the side of the hill high enough to be out of the mud and free from the objectionable odors common in a lumber town.

When we went in in we found Charley Walters in charge doing the work exceedingly well for a new teacher who never tried to run a "shooting gallery" before teaching the young idea how to shoot.

When we'd had a talk with him we found that the grade proposition was one of some concern for him and also the schedule of daily recitations. He and the Supervisor then proceeded to readjust matters and in a short time we had the grades well divided and the schedule of recitations arranged as to render it practically easy for the work to be done as required by law. After we had done the grading and arranging of the schedule we then proceeded to put the new order of things into operation and the remainder of the day we spent in testing the new order and the only thing we found necessary to change was the prematurely advanced pupils who were trying to take work beyond their ability to comprehend. Some of them were not willing to change but we succeeded in getting them to see that they would be better served in the books that they were able to understand.

We spent the next day in watching the work at Redwine and then being assured by the teacher that the work was well arranged and altogether satisfactory with the teacher we took our leave for Spaw Creek where we found Miss Effie Bell Blair in charge of the work. We first noticed the lack of accommodations for the school in the way of house, seats, apparatus, etc., but we knew that the Superintendent had in mind a plan for the betterment of conditions at this place so we did not dwell long on the conditions that it was not our province to discuss. We had a talk with Miss Blair, we found that her chief need was help to grade and to arrange the schedule of recitations. The Supervisor then took up the matter with her help and soon had the work shaped to her liking and after we had heard some recitations for her we asked whether she thought she would need any further help and on being told that she was sure the work would be easier and more satisfactory for her, and assuring her of further should occasion arise, we took our leave to Jones' Creek where we found Miss Burton in charge. We were favorably impressed with the appearance of things at this place before we entered the house for we found the yard and grounds swept clean and the general air of cleanliness prevailing. On entering we did not find the floor covered with paper, but the floor was clean of both paper and dirt, and on the walls were the nicest collection of pictures we have seen in our round. We heartily commend her method of cleanliness and attractiveness about and in the school house.

On asking whether we could be of any service Miss Burton told us she needed some help in the matter of grading and arranging the schedule of recitations. We soon had both arranged to her liking, and in classifying the pupils we found some as is usually the case trying to do work beyond their ability, and it was not till we read the law concerning the course of study that we could get them to see that the only thing to do was to take what they could manage profitably.

We then staid till Miss Burton was sure she could do the work easier and then we left her to pursue her own course, feeling sure on our part that she will make good.

We see no good reason why the schools in charge of these young teachers will not make a success for this year for they seem full of inspiration and determination to succeed.

Our work for the coming week lies in the upper portion of the county on White Oak, Johnson's Fork Wheelrim, and Grassy and we will send in a report of our experiences at the close of the week.

Respectfully,
NOAH CISCO,
Supervisor.

Fine Residence Burned.

The residence of Charley Franklin, on Glenn avenue, together with almost its entire contents, was destroyed by fire at about 2:30 Thursday morning. The house is supposed to have been struck by lightning during the storm, earlier in the night, and smoldered for some time before it broke into a blaze. Mrs. Franklin and children had been away from home for several days and there had been no fire in the house during her absence.

The building was one of the best in town and was only partly covered by insurance.

The Graham Camp base ball club kept up its unbeatable record Sunday by defeating Cannel City by the overwhelming score of 20 to 2.

The Camp hasn't lost a game this season, this being the tenth straight victory for the boys in blue. The game was so one sided that it was not interesting at all as the Camp began to pile up the runs in the first inning and kept it up until the curtain fell in the last half of the ninth. Cannel City used three pitchers during the combat, but a new bat purchased by the Camps last week was full of base hits and the total of 20 runs tell the story of how they fared at the hands of the Graham men.

The game became more of a joke in the eighth and ninth innings as the Camp was anxious to get over with it.

As several of the boys hit two and three-baggers over the right field fence, and ran the wrong way by third instead of by first base.

Davis was in the box for the Camp and pitched his usual steady game, allowing about 6 or 7 scattered hits, and sending some 12 or 14 by the "strike out" route.

Following is the line up of the teams and the score by innings.

Graham Camp	Cannel City
Steel	1b Williams
Davis	p Holliday
Cisco	3b J. Benton
W. Henry	2b Slaughter
Carter	c Gambill

Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT
WOODROW WILSON.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

The world whirls on, we cannot see
The force that moves the sphere;
The phenomena of death and life
We fail to understand.
Our moods and passions sway us then
And here;
Just how and why we live is not clear;
And onward plod we through many a weary year,
Our destinies fashioned by an unseen hand.

The will of the people is law in West Liberty—Niti!

A Bull Moose is never dangerous until he is wounded.

Some men are so afraid that they will do wrong that they won't try very hard to do right.

The appointment of certain Federal Judges by President Taft hangs like a millstone about his political neck.

The Republicans continue to howl: "Break the Solid South." In the meantime the Democrats are making inroads north of the Mason and Dixon line.

It looks as if Wilson and Marshall were already gathering momentum, although the presidential race has scarcely begun. It is our humble opinion that the Democrats could not have selected a stronger pair.

Trot your own shortcomings up alongside those of your neighbor before you turn loose your battery.
Perhaps the other fellow's fault will look so small by the side of yours that you will train your guns on number 1 in part settlement of the score between you and him.

In this issue will be found the law card of Evert Mathis, whose office is on the first floor of the court house. Mr.
Mathis is a young man of energy, ability and ambition, and respectfully solicits a part of the patronage of those having business to transact in the courts of Morgan and adjoining counties.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson will not resign the Jersey Governorship to make the race for President.
Seems as though we recall great howling on the part of Democrats in this State last year about Judge O'Rear making a campaign while holding office.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

But Governor Wilson proposes to still discharge the duties of his office. That Judge O'Rear utterly failed to do while making his campaign.

Democratic Candidate for Congress from the Ninth.

TRUTH

The boy who tells the truth at all times and under all circumstances will never make a thief nor a rogue.
He will never develop into a professional gambler nor a confirmed inebriate. He will never be a jail-bird nor wear a felon's stripes. He can't become a criminal of any kind because truth and crime are incompatible. He can't be a coward because it takes courage of the right kind to always speak the truth.

Educate your boy to be strictly truthful and you have solved the problem of man-making. You needn't worry about his future if he always tells the truth.

The chances are that we will have a parcels post law before the year of 1912 is lead. The argument that such a law will ruin the country merchant is all ommyrot. If the merchant is progressive and uses printers ink such a law will redound to his advantage.
If he is not progressive there will always be someone to take his place.

Let the parcels post come.

When Louis D. Brandeis, noted lawyer and economist, of Boston, declared that the only way to preserve respect for the law and the judges is to make the law and the judges respectable, he uttered a truth that ought to become axiomatic. So long as the judiciary is used for the purpose of furthering the private interests of the judges that long will they be held in contempt by the masses of the people.

If those solicitous souls who have been so alarmed lest the Courier might contain something that would hurt the West Liberty High School will only review the action of the trustees at their meeting last week they ought to forever after hold their peace as far as kicking the Courier is concerned.
The school needs no knocks from us to hasten its demise.
It is dying, none too slowly—smothering in its own excrements. Perhaps some day, out of the ruins where it once lived and ought to have flourished, will arise a school that will be worthy the name. I use the word "perhaps" ad-visedly. But let us hope.

Vote for Smith Hays.

STUDY PUNCTUATION

The reading public would be surprised if they could see many of the communications which come to an editor's desk, as they were originally written. Even people with more than an average education, school teachers, business and professional men, if they know aught of the use of capital letters and punctuation marks, sometimes utterly fail to make use of their knowledge. The question naturally arises: "Is the study of capitalization and punctuation neglected in our public schools?" We are inclined to believe that it is; and to the teacher who chances to read this article we would say, that if you are neglecting this important part of your school work, you are doing your pupils an injury that cannot be repaired in after years.

The dismissal of postmaster, L. B. McHargue, of London, by President Taft, is one of the most glaring and flagrant abuses of the power of patronage ever perpetrated by an officer possessing such power.
It is a direct thrust, by the chief executive of the United States, at the freedom speech and of the press. By this act alone the correct measure of the man who wants to succeed himself as President of a boasted free country can be accurately taken.
The Mayor of a city of the 2nd class would not conde-scend to a thing so little.
The President's action in this particular case deserves the closest analysis by every voter in the United States.

What are the churches
doing to banish ignorance, that hydra-headed monster, and superstition, the legiti-mate offspring of ignorance, from the land? A glance over the field that lies invitingly before them and at their manifold opportunities to accomplish real good, and to see those opportunities being wasted on little things and imaginary evils, is enough to fill the mind of a thinking man or woman with disgust.

There is quite a difference in being right and being diplomatic. I have yet to have the first person say to me, face to face, that I am in the wrong in the scrap with the churches in West Liberty. But a great many have ventured the suggestion that I was undiplomatic. If "diplomacy" and "right"

the matter.

GUMPTION
Which is Common Sense without Educational Furbelows.
By L. T. HOVERMALE.

THAT Hammond, Indiana,
sport who held five aces in a poker game, discovered that fives were not good as against a flush and a double-barreled shot gun. The holder of the flush—and the shot gun—was very moderate in his contention that Mr. Hoyle was good authority on poker. He used only one barrel of his gun and shot below the knees. According to the latest medical authorities in Kentucky, the practice of holding fives in a poker game is too dangerous to become epidemic.

RATHER than face the proof, Federal Judge Hanford,
of Washington, against whom impeachment proceedings were instituted, resigned from the bench. Judge Archibald, another Federal Judge facing impeachment, still hangs on. One of the principal counts against Hanford is that he gets drunk; against Archibald that he has to have a stated cash consideration for his decisions. Hanford's retirement from the bench will not necessarily hinder him in his effort to keep up the demand for the product of the distilleries, but like Othello, Archibald will find his occupation gone. The power to extort money from the beneficiaries of corrupt decisions will have ceased, hence the fight to hold on.

Verily, some of our "hold-for-life-or-during-good-behavior" jurists are daisies. And some people think that if they can do no wrong.

LAST week a Perry county jury acquitted George Washington Morgan, charged with murder by killing Deputy United States Marshal M. F.
Blair. The prosecution should have known that it had no show prosecuting a man with that cognomen in Perry county, and, too, just for killing a revenue officer.

THE BULL MOOSE move-is being sneered at by the leading dailies of both Democratic and Republican persuasion who affect to believe that the candidacy of Roosevelt will have little bearing on the election result in November. If these papers would learn to tell the truth and let their readers know the real situation they would have more weight when they attempt to influence public opinion.

That the third party will have a decided effect on the result of the election this fall is patent to all thinking men. Just what effect it will have is difficult to tell. Taft was beaten from the day of his nomination, and the third party movement can only make his defeat more decisive.
But there are other effects it may have. If it carries a few states it might throw the election of president into the House of Representatives. It might even win the election.

There is a growing belief in the minds of the people that the two dominant parties have kept the real measures that would be of benefit to the people in the background, and have faked "issues" to keep up party strife and elect men who would pander to the big business interests.
The people are tired of being given only promises of relief, and the number that are willing to lay aside party and vote for measures is hourly increasing.
In the great unrest of the present no one can foretell how the great masses will vote this fall.

If the Bull Moosers adopt a radical platform that has the ring of truth and sincerity in it, and make a vigorous campaign, their recruits will not all come from the republican party. And personality of Roosevelt must be reckoned with. Such men can not be laughed into oblivion.

The dominating, forceful personality of the man will attract men to the movement.

Without a complete change of public opinion, the contention this fall will be between Democracy and Bull Moosers. There can be no satisfactory apology for Taft's nomination or for his administration.
The Socialists will have a bigger vote than Taft's.

GIVE THE MOUNTAINS A CHANCE

JUDGE A. J. KIRK FOR APPELLATE JUDGE

Judge Andrew J. Kirk, of Paintsville, Johnson County, Kentucky is a candidate for Judge of the Appellate Court from this the Seventh Appellate District. He has served two terms as Circuit Judge of the Twenty-fourth Judicial District, being elected the last time without opposition from either Republicans or Democrats. He is seldom reversed in the Court of Appeals and has made a record to be proud of as Circuit Judge. He is well qualified to fill this office, is the logical candidate at this time, is a deserving Republican, and is a mountain man.

This office has been held by a Montgomery County man for the past forty-six years. It is time the mountain people were given some representation. Friends of Judge Kirk over the district are confident he will win, and he is becoming more popular each day.

The Primary election will be held on Saturday August 3rd. Let every Republican in the county go to the polls and help Judge Kirk, a mountain man, and the son of an old soldier, win the nomination.

My Lady of Doubt

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HENRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1915.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission to Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great feast and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a wall, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mortimer, to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the "Lady of the Blended Rose."

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the militia men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors look for a strong cell, where he meets Peter the Jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "some one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's appearance adds mystery to the combination of circumstances.

CHAPTER XIV—Lawrence again meets the "Lady of the Blended Rose," who informs him that he is in her house and that she was in command of the party that attacked and captured him.

CHAPTER XV—The captive is thrust into a dark underground chamber when Captain Grant begins a search of the premises.

CHAPTER XVI—After digging his way out, Lawrence finds the place deserted. Evidences of a battle and a dead man across the threshold.

CHAPTER XVII—Col. Mortimer, father of the "Lady of the Blended Rose," finds his home in ruins.

CHAPTER XVIII—Capt. Grant finds that Lawrence is sprung up at once.

CHAPTER XIX—Miss Mortimer appears, explains the mystery and Lawrence is held prisoner of war, and is again locked in the strong room.

CHAPTER XX—Lawrence escapes through plans arranged by the "Lady of the Blended Rose" and attacks Miss Mortimer.

CHAPTER XXI—Grant is knocked out when he comes to Miss Mortimer, and then makes his escape.

CHAPTER XXII—Captain Grant's base is finally revealed.

CHAPTER XXIII—Lawrence returns to Valley Forge, where he learns more of Grant's peridy.

CHAPTER XXIV—Washington forces Clinton to battle and Lawrence gets a chance of escape.

CHAPTER XXV—The battle of Monmouth.

CHAPTER XXVI—Gen. Washington again starts Maj. Lawrence on an important mission.

CHAPTER XXVII—Lawrence finds Miss Mortimer in soldier's uniform, acting as a scout under her brother's name. Explanation follows.

CHAPTER XXVIII—Lawrence delivers Washington's dispatches to Gen. Arnold, and is assigned to the special service of capturing Fagin, the cutthroat.

CHAPTER XXIX—Eric Mortimer is found prisoner of Fagin's, and released by Maj. Lawrence.

The disappeared into the black depths of the ravine, moving cautiously and with little noise. Tom and I plunged down the steep slope, feeling our way through the darkness, but moving to the right, toward where the scouts had indicated the horses were being herded. We skirted these, creeping along the opposite bank behind a fringe of bushes, certain that the darkness concealed our movements from the two men on guard. We crossed fifty feet above, gained the top of the bank, and crawled down, sheltered from observation, until we were directly above the two guards. Peering cautiously over, we could easily distinguish the black outlines on the hillside below.

One man was standing up, leaning against the trunk of a small tree, while the other was sitting on the ground, his head bent forward, and a hat drawn low over his eyes. Neither had uttered a sound, but as my eyes strained through the darkness I began to perceive details which awakened a new suspicion. The fellow standing up wore a cap and no coat, and his hands were clasped over a short, sawed-off gun. He had the appearance of the soldier, but the other man apparently was in uniform, although I could not distinguish his character. What instantly attracted my attention was that his hands were evidently behind his back. If this was true, he was a prisoner, and the other man stationed there to guard him.

The horses. Tom perceived, as I did, for I felt his fingers creep up and the edge of the rock. I said, pointing, "That will be you, sir, back and not more than five feet away. Can you do it?"

"Leave your weapons here," I added, and when you spring, get hold of his belt. He cannot fire. I'll cover him. He must strike. Go on."

"Unluckily his belt, and crept to the right, so noiselessly that I was watching his snake-like movements. I could hear no sound. The guard did not move his head, his face remained motionless, his knees down almost to his knees. Down behind the horses stamped restlessly, and switched their tails. Watching each motion like a hawk, I saw Tom dip over the crest, and worm his way down behind the rock. The he disappeared, until, as he cautiously arose to his feet, his head and shoulders emerged shadowy just beyond. Realizing he was ready, I got to my knees, gripping a pistol butt. Without a warning sound the dragon leaped, his arms gripping the astounded sentinel with the hug of a bear. He gave utterance to one grunt, and then the barrel of my pistol was at his head. "Not a word!" I said sternly. "Unsnap his belt, Tom. Yes, take his gun. If he moves, or utters a sound, shoot him down."

I wheeled to face the other, who had lifted his head, and was staring at us through the darkness. He was no longer a mere shapeless shadow, but a slender, straight figure, and my heart gave a sudden throb. "Who are you?" I asked sharply. "Eric Mortimer?"

"Yes," he answered, in evident surprise. "Do I know you?"

"No," and I cut the rope binding his ankles. "But I was searching for you. I am an officer of Maxwell's brigade; my name is Lawrence. Tell me first what has happened—why you are being held prisoner."

He stretched his cramped arms and legs, lifting his hat so that I saw his face dimly. In the gloom his resemblance to Claire was so remarkable that I involuntarily exclaimed: "Heavens! but you look like your sister!"

"Like Claire! they all say so; you know her?"

"It is at her request," I am here; you need not fear to tell me your story."

"Oh, I do not. I can see your uniform. But damn it, I don't know any too much about what is up myself. This is Red Fagin's outfit."

"I thought so. Where did he get you? How long have you been a prisoner?"

The boy laughed recklessly, his eyes upon the others. "Well, my story is a short one, Lawrence. I had a fellow in the British service who occasionally gave me information. Word came to me to meet him at a certain spot—"

"You mean Captain Grant?"

"Hell! How did you know that?"

"Never mind; I do know—so you can go on."

"I had no intention of speaking names."

"Oh, let that pass. You may think Grant all right, but the rest of us know he is at the bottom of the whole matter."

"You mean he betrayed me?"

"There is no doubt of it. He is in with Fagin."

The lad drew a long breath. "I half suspected it," he said slowly, "only it didn't seem possible. Now listen, and perhaps together we can make something out of all this. I went to the place where we were to meet, and had a talk with Grant—yes, it was Grant all right. He told me some things, but needed a day or two to get other information. While waiting I came over here to Elmhurst, and found Claire. She's the kind of a girl you can tell things to, and I wrote out what I had learned, and left some of my papers. Then I went back to the house."

The Hell Bound Train.
Tom Gray lay on the bar room floor, Having drunk so much he could drink no more
So he fell asleep with a trouble train,
And dreamed that he rode on a hell-bound train.
The boiler was filled with beer,
And the devil himself was engineer.
The passengers made a terrible crew—Church members, Atheist, Catholic, Jew.
Rich men in broadcloth, and beggar in rags;
Handsome young ladies and withered old hags;
Yellow and black men, red, brown and white—
All chained together! What a terrible sight.
But he capered about, and sang in his glee,
And laughed and joked at their agony.
"My faithful friends, you have done my work,
And the devil can never a pay-day shirk.
"You have bullied the weak, and robbed the poor,
And the starving brother turned from your door,
You have laid up gold where the canker rusts,
And given free vent to your fleshly lusts.
"You have justice scorned, and corruptions shown,
And trampled the law of nature down.
You have drank and rioted, murdered and lied,
And mocked at God in your hell-born pride.
"You have paid full fare, so I'll carry you through,
For it's only just you should get your due.
Why, the laborer expects his hire,
So I'll land you safe in the lake of fire.
"Where your flesh shall roast in the flames that roar, And my imps torment you forever more."
Then Tom awoke with an agonizing cry,
His clothes soaked with sweat and his hair standing high.
And he prayed as he never prayed before,
To be saved from drink and the devil's power,
And his vows and prayers were not in vain,
For he never more rode on a hell-bound train.

SQUARE DEAL
Dear Courier:
Please find inclosed $1.00 for a renewal of my subscription. I admire the Courier as it hails from the silver tablets of "Proud old Morgan," rare racy and full of news, it comes to as a welcome visitor. It seems to bear the emotions and aspirations from my native hills, where upon the southern banks of the splendid "Old Licking, I first saw the light 64 years ago. And above its limpid waters the nightingale sang its lullabies around my infant couch, I learned to love her native heath and her mountain fastness, her majestic hills and fertile valleys, and last but not least, many sacred mounds that hold in their embrace my Kindred and friends who have fallen on the battle field of life, and their sweet spirits rest in the bosom of God. It was my pleasure to teach several schools in different localities in my youthful days and afterwards to practice medicine in many homes. I have stood by the bedside of your sick and dying. In prosperity you have had my cheer and my smile, in your adversity I have mingled my tears with yours, which comes to me now as a sweet reminiscence, but not altogether with unmixed joy. So to my many friends who ready your splendid paper, will you accept my profoundest greetings?
Respectfully,
B. F. McCLURE,
Paris, Ky.

Hay fever and asthma make August a month of intense suffering to many people. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound gives prompt ease and relief, and is soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes. Wm. M. Merethew, N. Searsport, Me., says: I suffered with asthma for many years, and have used many a doctor's prescription without avail. A few doses of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound relieved me and less than a bottle caused a complete cure. I am glad to let others know what Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has done for me. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all dealers.
